Dominium Hires Catherine Noske as Floating Community Manager

MINNEAPOLIS – October 3, 2016 – Dominium, a leading apartment development and management company, today announced that it has hired Catherine Noske as a Floating Community Manager. In her new role, Noske will assist to on-board new Dominium communities in Florida and transitioning new communities during the re-syndication and rehabilitation process until they are stable. She will also assist with developing the property management teams and cover community manager absences.

Noske has more than 15 years of experience in property management, acquisition rehabilitation and development. She is currently finishing her Bachelor's Degree with a double major in Communications and Marketing from Regis University. In addition, she is a member of the National Apartment Association, Disabled American Veterans and sits on the board of directors for the Kamryn Lambert Foundation.

Prior to joining Dominium, Norske was the director of operations for RPJ Housing Development Corp. in Alexandria, Va. where for the past three years she led the board of directors through disposition of several multifamily assets and dissolution of the agency.

Norske currently resides in Daytona Beach, Fla. In her free time, she does volunteer marketing work for several nonprofit organizations and participates in many charitable organizations and fundraisers. In addition, she enjoys working with her husband helping combat veterans with PTSD obtain VA services and service animals.
